Cleveland, Sept. 21. -- Finance was expected to say today:

The amount of life insurance carried by President McKinley has been a subject of considerable discussion through the newspapers and some of the insurance journals. Finance has ascertained that President McKinley carried $35,000 in life insurance policies, which were distributed as follows: One landred thousand each in the Equitable Life, New York Life and the Mutual Life Insurance Companies, of New York; $10,000 in the Connecticut Mutual, and $5,000 in the Michigan Mutual, of Detroit.

President McKinley was written for $5,000 in the Michigan Mutual Life in 1872, which for 10 years remained and then was increased by another $5,000 policy, written by Joseph S. Saxton. For a number of years he carried a celley of 35,000 m the Conneeticat Mutual Life, which was taken out when there was no agen of this company in Cardon, Alliance has lost a great benefactor in the death of Dr. O. N. Hartshorn. He was the founder and ex-president of Mt. Union college, an institution which has not only benefited thousands of students but which has done much to advance the business interests of the city.

According to the New York Medi cal Journal the late President's deatl was not due in the slightest degree to the omission of anything that science could have suggested to save him. The testimony of so well known authority will do much to confirm the conviction of the general public that the eminent surgeons and physicians in charge of the case did all that could be done to save the life of their distinguished patient.

The orderliness and silence of the vast crowds which filled the streets of Canton on Thursday were among the most impressive of all the evidences of love and respect shown by the people of this vicinity for their late fellow townsman. Not a light or frivolous word was to be heard and few smiling faces were to be seen. Sadness seemed to saturate the atmosphere, The scenes were such as are to be remembered for a lifetime.

For five minutes on Thursday, at the approximate time at which the body of President McKinley was consigned to its last resting place, almost the whole business life of every great city in the country stopped in silent tribute to the man whose death by the assassin's bullet at the post of duty has shocked the world. For five minutes cars, trains, steam boats, telegraph wires and workshops were still that all might think of Canton and what was happening men. Such a tribute has never before been paid; to the memory of any great man.

Dun's trade review for this week contains a worthy tribute to the memory of our dead chieffald and a stirring call to take up the task to which bis life was devoted under a new leader whose loyalty, honesty and capability no one can doubt. "While achievements little short of marvelous have already been accomplished," it says "the natural resources of the country are by no means chaausted. It seems most fitting at this time to look hopefully into the future and earnestly continue the march onward and upward that was planned by the one who was taken away ere the posihis name will be always associated in the minds of a grateful and patriotic

The example set by President Roosevelt in plunging at once into the transaction of important business demanding his attention at the outset of his career at the White House, is a good one to follow. The period of relaxation and depression following the strain of the past few days can be most easily passed over by following the usual order of affairs. Never before have the people been so united and harmonious as at the 'funeral of McKinley. Never before in the history of the country have all our interests been on so sound a basis, and never before have we faced a prospect so promising and prosperous as that before us at the beginning of this autumn. Let us prepare to make the most of conditions which surround us.

McKINLEY'S FIRST SPEECH.

On a dry goods box, four feet long, three feet wide and three feet high. President McKinley made his first political speech in the little town of New Berlin, way back in '65. The box stood in front of a house which has since burned down, and just within the gate of a wooden fence within one hundred feet of the four corners of the business center. The man who introduced him to his first audience lives in a new brick house, built within ten feet of the location nesday. of the dry goods box which supported the President on that memorable night. The witnesses Friday were Rear Admiral Higginson, who commanded the battleship Massachusetts during the Spanish war: Captain C. M. Chester, who accompanied the cruiser Cincinnati; Major Thomas N. Wood, of He spoke under the glimmer of the the marine corps, who commanded the Commander Giles B. Harber, who was executive officer of the Texas, the latter being on the stand when the court adjourned. The attendance of the public was small.

EMPLOYED IN POCOCK MINE. SOME WRITTEN QUESTIONS

The judge advocate then offered Admiral Higginson's report of the 5th of August, saying the report had been made in line of duty. Judge Wilson, of counsel for Admiral Schiey, said no objection would be made but that counsel for the applicant did not desire the unobjected accentance of the report to operate as a precedent.

Ca, thin Lemly announced that he had no further questions to ask of A. airal Higginson, and the attorneys for Admiral Schley said they had no questions to put. It was then said by Captain Lemly that the court had

The next question was as to whether "there was any place of shelter near Santiago where the 'flying squadron' could Admiral Higginson replied tiago. that Guantanomo was only 40 miles to the east.

The third question, coming as it did, from the court, created something of a sensation, which was added to by the reply. The question was ish steamer Colon, as she lay at anchor in the harbor at Santiago, between the 27th and 31st of May?'

THE WITNESS REFLECTED

ON SCHLEY'S CONDUCT.

"Object," "Object," "Object," came from each of Admiral Schley's counsel, but before a halt could be called the witness had replied. "No, I don't think it was."

The question and the reply led to the mine. About four years ago Davis a legal controversy. The question at that time on the 26th to coal ship was withdrawn by Admiral Dewey.

Captain Chester related an interon board the Brooklyn off the south coast of Cuba, on May 20, 1 93. He had told the admiral that from his vailing to have prevented the Texas examination of the charts he believed coaling feasible, but he thought it would be done under great disadvant ages. He had expressed the opinion that boots might be used or that a more secure point might be gained under the leas, 30 miles to eastward. Major Thomas N. Wood, of the ma tine corps, who commanded the ma line force on the Massachusetts dur ing the Spanish war, testified to the rircumstances connected with that vessel's operations during the siege of Santiago. He said that the second day after Santiago bay was reached by the "flying sous Iron" he had seen the Christobal Colon lying inside the harbor: that there was at that time another Spanish vessel of the Viscara class partly visible. He thought both were in view for three or four days.

After the bombardment ceased, Mafor Woods said, the Spanish shore batteries continued to fire at the American ships. At this point he had gone forward, where he had again ьееп Commodore Schley.

"Did you hear orders or instructions given by Commodore Schley after the bombardment?" asked the judge advocate. The witness plied:

"I went upon the superstructure to ask if we were going in again or going any closer, so as to know whether we would have a chance to use the sixinch batteries, of which I was in command, and I heard, as I believe, Commodore Schley say to Captain Higginson: 'Starboard your helm and let's get out of this.'"

"How clear is your recollection? Were these his exact words?"

"As I remember, these were the ex act words, and at the time I considered them as having been made by Commodore Schley. There were quite a number of people up there on the forward part of the deck at that time, and from the recognition of the voice and the general direction from which it came, I took it to be a remark made by the flag officer. The American fleet, he said, lay seven or eight miles from the mouth of the harbor at night and further than that in the daytime.

Asked concerning his knowledge of the Brooklyn's loop during the battle ff Santiago, the witness said he did not see the loop made. He said, in reply to questions, that the blockade was maintained by the vessels steam ing in column back and forth in front of the mouth of the harbor at a distance of from seven to ten miles out. the greater distance being that maintained at night.

At this distance there was no difficulty in seeing the shore during the daytime and on clear nights, but when the weather was bad it was difficult to see the shore in the daytime, and sometimes under those circumstances impossible to see it at night

Recurring to the Brooklyn, he said he had seen that vessel immediately after it had executed the loop, when it was on the port bow of the Texas, about 800 feet distant.

WEEKS AT SEEFELD.

Travelers Sojourn at an Inn Which was Formerly a Monastery and From Which Religeon is now Almost Crowded Out by Beer-Difficulties Wrath With a Limited Assortment of Verbs and Nouns.

Seefeld, Austrian Tyrol, Aug. 23.-A diligence that had twisted its way up form Zirl, left us and our wordly | breast. effects in the middle of the road in Seefeld one fine noon, and we demanded porters in that imperative Swiss table d'hotes. A young gentletail, and who also smoked a porcelain pipe two feet long, set off to announce our arrival, and "the porters" soon returned with him. They proved to be strapping Tyrolean girls, one of whom trundled a wheelbarrow. Three minutes later, we had passed under a stone arch, through a courtyard, and beckoned onward by the word"Eingang"reached our rooms in the "Gasthaus zum Klosterbrau" spectable inn had been a monastery, but in our day religion had been case of many of the villages of Ausmatter of course. Thus, while the beautiful old arched cloister served as a public dining room, the refectory of the monks and other of their cavernous chambers were devoted to the production of the "Koster brau." ings had not succumbed to commerce, and we where aroused in the morning by the organ prayed at early mass. The memory of the two weeks idled away under these conditions, amid the Tyrolean mountains, will be difficult to efface, although our adventures were far from thrilling. There was, however, a certain satisfaction in feeling ourselves a little aside from the beaten path of travel. The village was innocent of a soul who could speak English, and our cloister companions were serious-looking Germans and Austrians, who caily emptied many tankards of the "Kloisterbrau" and were polite and companionable. We were all addressed by the servants as "your well-born excellency" or by some other high-flown title, but the submissive use of such expressions as "gracious master" could not allay our democratic wrath, when Marie, the ubiquitous "ober-kellner"—I believe that is right—invariably served a tall and angular German lady out of her turn, because the latter happened to be a "baronne." And the situation was all the more aggravating, because our limited assortment of verls and nouns compelled us to remain mute and rendered it indispensable to accept these daily crosses with meekness of spirit, or else to seek new lodgings.

We found that others had also their burdens to bear, in the experience of the heavily shod personages who thundered at the doors in the morning in order to get mountain climbing parties off betime. It seems that one of the "touristen" having left instructions to be called daily at 4 a. m., was a green "yager" suit in a clothing attended the memorial services in duly roused of a morning when the rain came down in sheets, and having a bunch of eidelweiss on the side, no fund of philosophy to fall back upon, denounced Hans as an ass, and declared that if he disturbed him again similarly, he would throw him down stairs. The next day it did not rain, but Hans did not knock; whereupon the ombrageous boarder again denounced him as an ass, and said that he would surely throw him down stairs if he neglected to waken him again. The third morning faithful Hans stood at the door at 4 a. m. in an agitated state and waited until the occupant appeared of his own accord, and then, wringing his hands, exclaimed in despair: "The gracious master says that he will throw me down stairs if I wake him, and the gracious master says that he will surely throw me down stairs if I do not waken him, and what am I to do?"

Piety never found more frequent expression than amid these Tyrotean church filled with "ex voto" offerings in the form of pictures, needlework tributes, and chromos, but along the roadside rarely more than five municu yanus opani, are mine surines stices, a delicious sort of sweet cake Main St.

Body of J. M. Bayliss to Arrive Tonight.

The Deceased was 43 Years Old, and Had Been Employed in the Census Bureau at Washington-Was an Expert at Figures and Had Received Several Promotions.

The body of James M. Bayliss will rrive from Washintgon this evening, and private funeral service will be held Sunday or Monday at the Pine street residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Willison. Mr. Bayliss was a son of the late James Bayliss, one of the pioneer residents of this city. He was 43 years old, and had spent practically his entire life in Massillon. About a year ago he received an appointment to a clerkship in the census bureau, and, being expert at figures, he soon made himself valuable, receiving several promotions in a comparatively short time. Previous to going to Washintgon, Mr. Bayliss was in the employ, as an accountant, of Russell & Company.

Nothing has yet been learned as to death. The dispatch Friday to The mitted suicide was the first word to reach the city. Afterward a telerelatives from Congressman Tayor. Arrangements for the removal of the body were made with William Knapp, a former Massillionian, now in Wash-

Mr. Bayliss was a brother of E. B. Bayliss, landlord of the Hotel Sailer, patronage. and Mrs. E. G. Willison, of this city, and of Edwin Bayliss, of Bessemer, Mich. His wife, from whom he had been parted for several years, and three children, are living in Cleveland, where Mrs. Bayliss is employed as a stenographer in the office of the Upson Nut and Bolt Company.

THE ASSASSIN IS STILL SILENT.

Absolutely Refuses to Confer With Counsel Assigned to Defend Him-Witnesses Have Been Subpoenaed to Appear on Monday.

Buffalo, Sept. 21.—Yesterday Judge Lewis tried again to discuss the case with the assassin and found him mute as usual. It is decided that the case will be tried before Justice Truman C. White, although the bar association suggested that as Justice Childs is the senior justice of this district it might be tried in his court. The district attorney has noticed it for Justice White's court and issued the subpoenas requiring witnesses to appear Monday.

District Attorney Penney says that there is no truth in the report that the chemists had found cyanide of potassium on the three bullets remaining in Czolgosz's revolver. The bacteriologists were not ready with their report and had not made even a partial report to him. He hoped to have their conclusions in time to assist him in the trial of the case. The bacteriologists said they were under strict orders to give their findings to none but the district attorney, and all stories of their operations were ficti-
